Hakim, Secord Used Iran Fund, Hakim Testifies

Compiled in Our Stuff From Disputches WASHINGTON - The business pariner of Richard V. Second testified Friday that the retired air force major general withdrew more than $113,000 in fran-contra funds for a Porsche sports car for his own use, a light plane and other items.

General Secord has said in sworn testimony that he took no profits in the secret U.S. sale of arms to Iran and diversion of proceeds to the Nicaraguan rebels, or contras,

But Albert Hakiro, in his third day of testimony before the congressional committees investigating the allair, relerred to the arms sales as a "business situation," He said the members of the enterprise, including General Secord, had tried to "maximize our profits" in the final arms sale.

Mr. Hakim said withdrawals totaling $113.317 had been made by General Secord from bank accounts that included profits from as high as 60 percent. the arms sales to Iran. It was Mr. Hakim who organized the financial an additional $52,000 was used to buy 2 Piper Seneca airplane for General Second in October 1985.

The testimony also indicated that General Second and Mr. Hakim used $250,000 for investments proposed by General Secord, inluding interests in a machine gun company, a food processing company and to make a timber deal.

Mr. Hakim said under questioning that he was not prepared to turn over to the U.S. Treasury S8 million in profits from the arms sale that is still held in Swiss bank

"It's not a question of doing the heroic thing and passing an acid lest." Mr. Hakim said, "It's a business situation and it should be

Mr. Hakim also testified that because "we wanted to maximize our profits," the enterprise made a 40 percent profit on its last deal, worth 52.1 million, in 1986.

In addition, the first detailed summary of arms sales to Adolfo Calero, a top Nicaraguan rebel leader, was released Friday, It showed that the network run by General Second and Mr. Hakim sold arms to the contras at markups

The documents included records of transactions in which the Hakim-Secord operation bought 81mm mortar cartridges for $29.50 each and sold them to Mr. Calero for $48, and bought rifle ammunition at $95 per thousand rounds, selling it at $124.

General Secord has testified that he personally forswore any profits. But he has also said, in an interview, that there was a markup of between 20 percent and 30 percent for the company run by himself and Mr. Hakim because "this was a business, not a philanthropic undentaking.

He said he left the profits under Mr. Hakim's control because he was interested in returning to the U.S. government and did not want to be tainted by profiteering.

Mr. Hakim testified Wednesda and Thursday that even though General Secord told him last year that he wanted no profits, he held $1.58 million for General Second in a separate Swiss bank account because he doubted his partner would return to government.

Senator Warren B. Rudman, Republican of New Hampshire and ice chairman of the Senate panel investigating the affair, said of General Secord and other witnesses: "I always resent people who wrap themselves in the flag while spitting on the constitution. I think that's what's been going on here."

Critics Say Subsidies Drive Up Prices of Food and Land By Susan Chira

New York Times Service FURUKAWA, Japan - The bright green rice shoots stand in the flooded paddies of Furukawa; the spring planting is over and in a few months the harvest will begin.

For 13 generations, these tasks have defined the life of the Aonuma family — seeding the rice in nurseries, transplanting the shoots to the fields, celebrating the harvest with festivals drawing upon Shinto religious rites. Yoich Aonuma, 31. sees himself as the upholder of that tradition

But now he feels under siege, both from abroad and, for the first time, from his own countrymen. The United States is pressing Japan to drop import bans on rice and a number of other agricultural products. Agricultural protection is on the agenda for the meeting in Venice of major industrialized de-moctacies. A growing number of Japanese are joining the foreign critics, saying that subsidies and import restrictions drive up food prices and maintain astronomical land prices that make Japanese housing cramped and expensive. For Acnuma and other farmers in Furukawa, about 250 miles (400 kilometers) north of Tokyo, the attack is not only on the aid they say they need to survive. It is, they say, nothing less than an assault on the heart of Japan. "We work to allow others to

Long Trek for Sons of North Pole Explorers

WASHINGTON — From the frigid villages of northernmost Greenland to the steamy city of Washington they came, a startling and somewhat scandalous footnote to history. The out-of-wedlock sens of Commander

Robert E. Peary, widely credited with leading the first expedition to the North Pole in 1909. and Matthew Henson, his black assistant who may actually have reached the pole first, arrived here this week along with nine of their progeny. For the two 80-year-old men. Karree Peary and Ahnaukaq Henson, their visit Wednesday to Admiral Peary's grave at Arlington National Cemetery and one scheduled for Friday to Mr. Henson's birthplace in Charles County, Maryland, are milestones in their journey. They came to Washington by bus from Boston, after their first airplane flight on their first Indian Air Force transports escorted by warplanes dropped 25 tons of food and medicine to Tamils in the Jaffna peninsula of northern Sri Lanka on Thursday. The previous day, Sri Lankan gunships turned back Indian boats that tried to deliver similar supplies by sea.

Both Sri Lanka and India have started diplomatic drives to put across their views of the operation. Diplomatic sources said their envoys around the world were briefing their host governments.

India says it is providing food because the Jaffna people, with close links to the 50 million Tamils in India, face severe hardship after a five-month economic blockade.

Sri Lanka says no outside assistance is necessary because Colom-bo can provide all Jaffna's requirements. Colombo calls the air drop an assault on Sri Lanka's sovereignty and territorial integrity.

The Indian foreign minister, Narain Dutt Tiwari, who is in Moscow, discussed the affair with Mikhail S. Gorbachev. The Soviet leader was said to have "displayed a perfect understanding of our analysis of the Sri Lankan situation."

The operation has evoked expressions of concern around the world and has had a mixed reception even in India itself. Politicians and newspapers supported it but many Indians privately expressed doubts both about its wisdom and about the view it represented of India as a regional power.

The strongest outside condemnation came from Pakistan, which has fought three wars with India in too many items on board, sometimes making proper stowing impossible. Beginning Jan. 1, 1988, the Federal Aviation Authority will require each airline to establish its own limits on the size and number of items that may be brought aboard various aircraft. It will also require each passenger's baggage to be "scanned" before boarding to verify that it does not exceed those limits. The new rules will

When Paul A. Voicker resigned this week as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, he had acquired the reputation of being "the second most powerful man in the country." But he appears to have no aspirations to becoming the first most powerful. Although Mr. Volcker, 59, a Democrat, is widely credited with having superb political skills, he has never run for office. A spot check around Washington by Robert C. Siner of the International Herald Tribune drew comments like "the chances are zero," "inconceivable" and "it's the last thing he would do." A spokesman at the Fed, Joseph Coyne, laughed at the question, adding that Mr. Volcker has "not considered running for the presidency or any other political office" and has "not given any thought" to his future plans.

By David K. Shipler

WASHINGTON - The Iraqi missile attack on the U.S. frigate Stark last month has complicated Washington's military relationship with Saudi Arabia, whose pilots declined to intercept the Iraqi plane after its strike.

House say the Saudi pilots and ground controllers performed correctly, following strict guidelines imposed earlier by the United States to preclude Saudi Arabia from using American-built F-15s against Israel or other countries.

In Congress, however, anger over the May 17 incident has contributed to an expanding effort to block the Reagan administration's plans to sell the Saudis 1,600 air-toground Maverick missiles, worth $360 million.

According to the Saudi Em-bassy in Washington, "needs of the kingdom" were discussed, an indication that the arms sales came up. Administration officials said they doubt the Saudis want to risk getting into combat on behalf of the United States without some assurance that U.S. arms will be forthcoming. "It's a reciprocal relationship said an administration official.

They can provide some help, if they have the political will. They have to have confidence in our staying power."
"This is a test," he said of the proposal to sell Maverick missiles, "and if they don't think that we pass the test, why should they put themselves in harm's way?" He and other administration of ficials defended the Saudi refusal to intercept the Iraqi jet that attacked the Stark, apparently by mistake, killing 37 U.S. sailors.

Officials said that in recent years, as the Saudis obtained advanced U.S. AWACS surveillance planes and F-15 fighters, questions of how the aircraft would be used were discussed in detail, with contingencies such as an attack on an American ship being considered. AWACS stands for airborne warning and control systems.

Lies and More Lies

Two patterns emerge starkly from the Iran-contra hearings: of deception and selfenrichment. The Reagan administration admits, with painful reluctance, that it misinformed Congress and the public about its secret activities in Nicaragua. Just as reluctantly, participants in the arms supply operation to the contras reveal how they used the cloak of secrecy for private gain.

These patterns contain ugly questions that do not stop with Elliott Abrams, the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs. and Lieutenant Colonel Oliver North. Congress finds it understandably difficult to believe Mr. Abrams. Yet Secretary of State George Shultz gives him his "full and cornplete confidence." And although Colonel North appears to have received a variety of personal benefits, from life insurance to snow tires, President Reagan has yet to modify his view of him as "a national hero."

Last Nov. 25, Mr. Abrams told Congress that the administration had not raised funds for the contras from other countries. That was untrue. Truthful answers might have led Congress to uncover the White House-sponsored "private" arms network, Mr. Abrams fenced and fibbed even as the White House was announcing the diversion of Iran arms money and the discharging of Colonel North, Mr. Abrams now says he lacked "authority" to divulge that deal. He had sworn to keep secret the Sultan of Brunei's contribution of $10 million. Committee members rightly replied that Mr. Abrams had no right to promise such secrecy, and certainly had no duty to lie about it in testimony.

The White House and Mr. Abrams blundered by not delivering the money to the needy Nicaraguan rebels. Mr. Abrarus now polishes that blunder into a defense. He Deceit and Enrichment contends that since the money had not arrived in the wrong Swiss bank rived - it was sent to the wrong Swiss bank account — he could legitimately deny that it had been raised. For good measure, he took a week to ponder his deceptions before acknowledging his error to Congress.

More: Last fall the Nicaraguan supply mission was exposed by the downing of the plane bearing Eugene Hasenfus, the American cargo chief. At the time, Mr. Abrams categorically denied that the administration was involved. His defense? He didn't know about it. Why? Because, he now admits, he consciously refused to inform himself despite orders from Mr. Shultz to keep tabs on Colonei North. He now employs his supposed ignorance to contend that he truly believed his inaccurate public assurances. Layers of lies. Testimony this week also revealed that a Catholic priest who once told Congress that Sandinists had dressed up as contras to commit atrocities was himself a fake priest. And who arranged for his congressional appearance, in costume? None other than Colonel North.

Other testimony further sullies the colo-nel's image as a selfless patriot. His private partners in the arms enterprise, Richard Secord and Albert Hakim, seem to have provided him with a $200,000 package of fringe benefits and made him heir to $2 million in arms profits. And he seems to have extracted money for groceries and snow tires from Congress has a right to wonder how any honorable dealings are possible with Mr. Abrams, who even now makes no pledge to be more curious or careful, or with a secretary of state whose spokesman describes Mr. Abrams as "sensational." Congress must wonder also about the judgment of a president who has yet to disown Colonel North. - THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Congress Can't Accept

The testimony of Elliott Abrams was in many respects the most revealing and painful yet heard in the Iran-contra hearings. Here was a ranking State Department official showing himself to be an enthusiast so committed to the pursuit of a challenged policy that he had been prepared to set aside considerations — factuality, openness, the building of trust - that should be the basic and normal stuff of government business, especially when the policy is hotly contested. The assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs presented himself as the scrupulous and unoffending or minimally offending victim of an administration's division of labor in which the State Department had only one walled-off part, and perhaps not the principal part, of the president's Nicaragua policy. But to conduct his assigned business and meanwhile keep himself plausibly in the dark about the rest. traces of which were to be seen almost everywhere, was truly a meticulous and demanding labor. Mr. Abrams performed it with a diligence that alternately saddened and enraged those who heard his tale.

Certainly a measure of political vengeance was taken on the essentially unrepentant Mr. Abrams by some who questioned him. Congress, after all, is embarrassed to have failed so dismally in its duty of oversight. And it recurrently provided the administration with revised rules of the game, which it had to know was being played right up to the edge of what was allowed. The main thrust of the questioning, however, fell elsewhere. "We cannot advance United States interest if public officials who testify before the Congress resort to legalisms and word games, claim ignorance about things they either know about or should know about and at critical points tell the Congress things that are not true," said chairman Lee Hamilton. To us, this summary of congressional sentiment was neither partisan nor narrowly protective of congressional prerogative, but legitimate and expressive of the core requirement of democratic policy making. Mr. Abrams at once received a ringing endorsement from Secretary of State George Shultz, But Congress has made clear that it cannot accept the kind of relationship with the State Department and the administration as a whole that emerged from Mr. Abrams's reluctant testimony.

The Greenspan Board

Alan Greenspan will take over the chairmanship of the Federal Reserve Board at a gan appointments have reflected the populirme when the board is, by any historical lists that is always a part of this administrastandard, conspicuously weak. The chief defect is inexperience. While the chairman usu- build an opposition to Mr. Volcker and the ally gets most of the public attention, there are in fact seven seats at the table, and all members' votes count equally in the decisions that set America's monetary policy.

Central banking is an esoteric and specialized business. For that reason, members' terms are set by starute at 14 years, with one term expiring every other year. But an unusual cycle of resignations has disrupted that orderly progression. Except for the outgoing chairman. Paul Volcker, no member of the present board has as much as three years' tenure: only one member has more than 18 months on the board, and one seat is vacant.

As recently as five years ago, the board was very much a mandarinate. All but one of the seven members were professional economists. Most had worked at staff level in the Federal Reserve System before their appointments, and a couple had spent most of their careers there. As a group they represented a very high level of expertise and intellectual capacity; the board's great shortcoming in those years was a lack of representation of the world that it regulates.

consensus of experts over which he preside: Several of the present members have had experience in commercial banking, but the Federal Reserve's work takes it into areas that commercial bankers rarely visit.

The complexity of the board's work has increased sharply in the last 15 years. Rapid swings in interest rates have made the basic job of managing the money supply far more difficult. The Latin American debts have greatly expanded the Federal Reserve's role in a particularly fast-moving and demanding kind of diplomacy. Among its other responsibilities, the Fed is one of the regulators of the banking system, which draws it deeply into the fierce struggle over the banking legislation now before Congress.

Having created a Federal Reserve Board that is very new to most of these issues, the administration cannot do much about it but let time and education take their course. When it begins to think about filling that vacant seat, it might want to consider, for the sake of balance, looking for a mandarin.

Segovia Was Here

"Anyone who desires to survive into vigor- did all that and more. There are millions who ous old age," Donal Henahan, music critic of The New York Times, wrote last year, "can improve his chance dramatically by arranging to be born with extraordinary talent as a trusical performer." Andrés Segovia, like Pablo Casals and Arthur Rubinstein, made such an arrangement. When he died this week at 94, he was watching television with his 17-year-old son - and perhaps wondering when he could reschedule the Carnegie Hall appearance he had to cancel last month.

He said once that he wanted to redeem the guitar from flamenco, create a repertory and public and win for it "a respected place in the great music schools along with the piano, the violin and other concert instruments." He might not have been introduced to Bach and Scarlatti, Haydn and Mozart if they had not first been introduced to Segovia.

They met him when they were young, hanging out not at concerts but in beatnik coffee houses and college dormitories. They listened to the intricate, delicate, powerful recordings and dreamed of capturing the sound on their own guitars, and they shushed anyone who dared speak or crum ple a paper. The famous "Segovia hush" embraced the dorm room as surely as it did the concert hall. Today one can hear street musicians playing Bach. "Ah." the listener says to herself, "Segovia was here."

Gorbachev: Toward a Face-Lift for the Soviet Bloc

M OSCOW — One of the ironies of Mikhaji Gorbachev's "openness" and "restructuring" program is the impact on the Soviet bloc.
The regime that the Red Army installed in Czechoslovakia in 1968 to put an end to Prague's version of such reforms now has cool relations with Moscow's leader. So do the East German and Bulgarian regimes, not to speak of Romania, which is so Stalinist that it is scarcely in the same generation.

The public in East Germany and Czechoslovakia. on the other hand, has shown considerable enthusiasm for Mr. Gorbachev's ideas, which is an important reason why their leaders are not pleased. People in both countries flock to buy the official Soviet press, for the first time, and the East German party paper Neues Deutschland occasionally censors the sages on glasnost in Mr. Gorbachev's speeches. Passages on glasnost in Mr. Corpacue v and When he was in East Berlin last week, he was treated as just another participant in the Warsaw Pact summit meeting, not the great leader of the camp.

The regime that the Red Army threatened in Poland in 1981, until martial law was declared, is now General Secretary Gorbachev's closest friend in the bloc. Hungary is also cheering him on. He offers more room for its domestic reforms and better prospects for reconciling its people.

So there is a new kind of diversity in East European relations with Moscow, Obviously, the Soviet leader would prefer more support. But he has declared that there is no longer any "center" in the bloc, that each member is equally autonomous to of some Communist parties toward reviving the work out its problems in its own way, although big brother is certainly still biggest.

It is not only "new thinking," in the Soviet jargon, that restrains the Soviet leader from pressing the others to reform. The last thing he would like to see is upheaval in the camp. It would probably bring his downfall, so it is not in his interest to push too hard. The Hungarian revolution in 1956, and the Polish defiance that preceded it, were in large part a result of Nikita Khrushchev's attempt to bring more modest reforms in the Soviet Union, although he never urged the others to follow him. But Mr. Gorbachev clearly would like to revive some kind of world Communist forum. Since the break with China in the 1950s, Moscow has never been able to convoke a worldwide meeting of Communist parties. It has not even been able to get all the European parties together since the East Berlin surumit meeting in 1975, where Santiago Carrillo of Spain said to Leonid Brezhnev's face. "Moscow is not our Rome, and October is not our Christmas."

Said a Polish diplomat in Moscow: "It's an anomaly. The Socialists, the Christian Democrats, the Liberals, they all have international meetings. Only the Communists can't." In a recent interview with the Italian Communist paper L'Unità, Mr. Gorbachev said he saw "no reason for the caution" tradition of meetings. This was a clear gibe at the Italians, who are wary of an appearance of re-newed subjection to Moscow. They took the position that any conference should include Socialists, Social Democrats and liberation movements.

Mr. Gorbachev seemed to go along, calling for bringing together all kinds of "progressives," with a demand for preventing nuclear war to be "their core, their pivot." He said representatives of various parties would be invited to Moscow for the 70th annities would be invited to Moscow for the 70th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution this year, and that he would propose "an informal meeting for extensive discussion of the key issues that concern the whole world ... without any document whatsoever and without any summing up of results."

East European diplomats consider this a test to see if a more formal conterence is feasible, and they doubt it. Some West European diplomats see it as an attempt to set up a new popular front on a global basis, reminiscent of the 1930s Soviet collaboration with non-Communist leftist parties in Europe.

All this is part of the longer-term effort to restore Soviet prestige and appeal by improving the country's living standards and its reputation abroad. Refurbishing the ideology and recapturing the allegiance of "progressives" is an integral part of Mr. Gorbachev's campaign. As he told the Italians. the "bourgeois press" is all wrong if it thinks he is out for Western-style democracy. That is not just to reassure worried comrades. He means it.

Peres: Out on a Limb Hawking a Peace Conference

PARIS - Abba Eban thinks the time is ripe for another Middle East conference. In a column on this page on May 25, the former Israeli foreign minister argued that conditions are optimal for a negotiation that he sees as the only alternative to a disastrous and explosive deadlock. Mr. Eban is right to want to break the deadlock, and also in his conviction that no durable solution can exclude the Soviet Union. But it is far from clear that con breakthrough are as good as he describes them — that a window of opportunity justifies Foreign Minister Shimon Peres's bold reliance on an international peace conference.

Electoral considerations are indeed involved, but the sincerity of

Mr. Peres's desire to break the present deadlock should not be doubted. He believes that in the long run nothing would be more detrimental to Israel's democratic institutions and security than continuation of the status quo in the occupied territories. But since 1979 and the signing of the Camp David agreements, which

WASHINGTON — For the last W cight years, Britain and the United States have been traveling paromical states have been traveling par-allel political paths under Margaret Thatcher and Ronald Reagan, Repub-licans are watching Thursday's British elections for cines to their best tactions in the 1988 elections. If Mrs. Thate er's Conservatives win their expected third term, you can expect the Republicans to adopt her themes of growth, ownership and national pride in 1988.

Republican National Chairman Frank J. Fahrenkopf Jr. went to London to observe last month's round of local elections and met his Tory party counterpart, Norman Tebbit, in the week when Mrs. Thatcher decided to call national elections. At Mr. Tebbit's invitation, a Fahrenkopf aide has been sitting in on the final week of pre-election maneuvering.

The close cooperation is not new. In 1979, the Republican chairman, Bill Brock, sent operatives to London to study the advertising themes and issues that the Tories used to reclaim power. Strong echoes of the "Labor isn't Working" theme turned up in Mr. Reagan's 1980 campaign, which weared millions of working families. frustrated by stagflation, away from their normal Democratic loyal

Four years later, Fahrenkopf aides watched as Mrs. Thatcher rode the suphoria and patriotic pride of her Falklands victory to an even more convincing second term. It was said at the time that Mr. Reagan had no comparable military credentials. But then came Grenada, and suddenly the Republican admen proclaimed that America was back and standing tall. This year again, differences seem more striking than similarities. The Conservatives have Mrs. Thaucher at their head, and she is, although conproversial, untainted by serious scandal. Republicans have a lame duck president damaged by the Iran-contra affair and are uncertain who will lead them into the 1988 election.

Mrs. Thatcher faces divided opposi-tion, in Labor and the Liberal-Social Democratic Alliance, and the pre-elec-tion polls make her party the favorite to retain its parliamentary majority. In Washington, the Republicans no long-er control either house of Congress and the early surveys suggest, however shakily, that Democrats may hold the favorite's role for 1988.

"I'm not sure we can take comfort if she wins," Mr. Fahrenkopf remarked. "But her campaign certainty is helpful in understanding how voters react to certain facts and certain appeals."

The main theme is economic growth without inflation. The Conservative manifesto says Britains in the seventh successive year of steady economic growth. "We have moved from the bottom to the top of the growth league Is the regional context more favorable than the international one? Egypt of major European powers ... Since the Conservatives took officia produc-tivity in British manufacturing has longs for peace, but there are no other Egypts in the Arab world.

In the week the Tories' manifesto appeared, the Republican National Committee issued a "special edition" that "America is in the midst of a period of unparalleled economic progress and job growth ... We've created more than 13 million new jobs."

deeply weakened by the loss of a military base in Lebanon. There is no Prosperity is a traditional boast of serious alternative to the PLO, but is it parties in power, and if the American economy remains healthy into (988, realistically an interlocutor, given its you will certainly hear the Republicans taking credit for it. Of greater interest to the party is Mrs. Thatcher's effort to redefine and realign the traditional class basis of British politics.

She has used every tool to make the average family think of itself as owning a piece of the nation's future. Tories claim there are 25 million more home-owning families than in 1979, a million of them former tenants of public housing who were aided in buying the units they occupied. The number of stockholders has trebled, many of the new capitalists being employees of formerly nationalized industries now

Pre-election polls showed Tories winning among working class voters who had become home-owners and stockholders. If those gains are confirmed on Thursday, you can expect to see a similar effort in America, with Republican candidates arguing that the tax cuts and investment incentives of the Reagan years have given many more families "a share in America."

For all the current preoccupation in Washington with the Iran-contra hearings, history suggests that basic economic issues are likely to count more heavily at election time. Democrais, like Mrs. Thatcher's opponents, assert that conservative policies have damaged the standing of the middle class. But if Mrs. Thatcher wins the argument on her side of the Atlantic, the Republicans will gain important clues on how to win it in America.

Canada Plans Ambitious Buildup of Its Military

The Associated Press OTTAWA - Canada, declaring its armed forces in danger of "rust out" after decades of neglect, announced Friday an ambitious military buildup, including the acquisition of 10 to 12 nuclear-powered submarines.

A white paper introduced in Parliament by Defense Minister Perrin Beatty also said Canada would cancel its "unsustainable commitment" to send a brigade and two fighter squadrons to Norway in wartime

The 5,000 troops will be deployed in an emergency with Canada's main NATO force of 6,900 in West Germany, Mr. Beatty said:

The 90-page document pledged a minimum real growth of 2 percent in military spending over the next 15 years — a pledge valued at $136 billion — with additional sums for special programs, such as the nuclear submarines.

General Paul Manson, chief of the defense staff, said the military got everything it wanted in the nation's first comprehensive military review in 16 years.

The plan calls for creation of a "three-ocean navy" with a balance between nuclear-powered submarines, surface vessels and patrol air-

The submarines, estimated to cost $300 million to $375 million each, would be delivered from 1996 to 2010, Mr. Manson said.

Military officials have said that French Rubis-class and British Trafalgar-class subs are the leading contenders but that about 65 percent of the work would be done in Canada.

The white paper also disclosed plans to develop new sonar systems for under-ice surveillance in the Arctic, and research into space surveillance against missile attack.

Canada will establish its first military base in the High Arctic, and increase its armed forces reserves from 51,000 to 90,000.

The nuclear submarines would carry conventional weapons in line with Canada's nonnuclear policy, but only nuclear propulsion will enable them to patrol under the ice for long periods.

The roles are recited rather than acted by Kathleen Butler and Tom Klunis, perhaps due to the author's directorial guidance. The Viennese critics have declared the play is skillful in its dramaturgy and distinguished in its dialogue, which ranges from the sardonic humor of the start to a note of lyricism in its closing passages. They predict that it will join Albee's great successes. Klaus Maria Brandauer's Hamlet is an arresting portrayal of the Danish prince, but in the Burgtheater's production of the Shakespeare tragedy it is surrounded with a forest of gigantic scenery that shifts so slowly that the play's pace is slackened. Hans Hollmann's staging has embroidered it with ineffectual innovations.

Studio Molière, and Joe Orton's that she has kept a journal of their Herzl, a Viennese journalist, founded the Zionist movement) engage in slapstick capers and exchange bad jokes. Perhaps the shortage of new plays is responsible for the full houses for this one or perhaps prospective customers expect something like the "Spring-time for Hitler" sequence from Mel Brooks's film, "The Producers." Its low humor is outrageously unfunny but Tabori has a hit.

The Akademietheater's repertory also contains "Der Herr Karl," a savage satire of the complacency with which a member of the petty bourgeoisie recounts his sly accep-tance of the political changes he has witnessed. It is by the late Helmut Qualtinger, an extravagant personality who shot like a comet across the postwar scene, exhibiting his versatility as humorist, dramatist and actor. He appeared in many films, most recently as a monk in "The Name of the Rose." He rekindled the fires of the literary cabaret and made it again a lennese specialty. It has survived his departure and continues to prosper, though it has become more conventional and less rebel-nant religion in Japan, and Chinese art an essential component of its aesthetic horizon at virtually all times of its history, these acquisitions could be seen as part of a search for a distant heritage. The next step, Impressionist and modern art, again failed to leave a significant impression on Western consciousness. The readiness of the Jananese trade to gobble up some of the less inspired artists of the Paris school as well as the worst daubs of Impressionism may explain this lack of reaction in the early stages. Since then, however, the fine tuning of their art buying has been ceaseless.

A sample of its present state is a revue at the Simpl, "Mythos mit Musik" (Myth with Music), a specious biography of Marlene Die-trich in which two women and one man take turns in impersonating Marlene. Some men who have crossed her path appear: her husband, Rudolf Sieber: Josef von Sternberg, her director, and Hermann Göring, who was anxious that she quit Hollywood and return to Germany after the Nazi takeover. Liberace is also present.

In March, a new stage was reached when a Japanese corporate museum acquired van Gogh's Sunflowers" for £24.75 million ($39.9 million) at Christie's. This too was misread. The focus in the media was on the extravagance of the price, rather than on the quality of the art. Its significance in the longer perspective was missed -"Sunflowers" is arguably the most important Western painting acquired by a Japanese buyer since World War II.

He flew to Tokyo and spent five days in Japan from May 9 to 14 doing his rounds, catalogues at the ready, from collector to dealer, from major museums in the capital to little known institutions in the provinces. On D-day, be made sure that a Japanese interpreter would read out the anouncements on sales procedures in Japanese. Drouot being Drouot, the sound system failed almost from the beginning. But Marcilhac's intensive canmeant. He died and many years vassing paid. It resulted in what later the family decided to part will remain as a landmark in the long-term transformation of the art market. Out of 95 pieces of Galle glass, Marcilhac reckons that at east 60 percent in lot numbers and 80 percent in value went to Japan. A precise figure cannot be given at this point, he notes, because the Japanese systematically cover their tracks when buying at auction. In the present case, Marcilhac himself got a number of commission bids. A Tokyo gallery, Belle des Belles. bought many pieces, some for stock and others reputedly in behalf of museums. Middlemen also acted in behalf of various Japanese clients so that eventually the count might show the Japanese role to be bigger Heading the band was the Kitazawa Museum at Suwa. Marcilhac says that the museum, which started buying on his advice a decade ago, has the finest collection of 20th-century French glass out-side France. In March 1984, it acquired the most important vase by Daum seen in years, at an auction held in Tokyo by the Paris auctioncering partners Ader-Picard-Tajan. The object, 47 centimeters (18.5 inches)high, titled "L'Ortie et l'Araignée, Hommage à Victor Hugo" and dated 1910, went for a record 60.5 million yen (about $270,000 at the time).

At the May 20 sale this year, the museum bought, via the Belle des Belles gallery, one of the most beautiful vases by Gallé made in 1902-03. The tapering cylindrical shape rises from the lapis lazuli vision. Marcilhac thinks that per-for 566,150 francs (then $68,365). The other main piece, also bought by the museum, was a large footed vase in the form of a floral chalice with applied roses handled in a free naturalistic manner.

The other Japanese buyers are not immediately identifiable. According to a source in the trade, a Tokyo dealer called lwakura was underbidding the important vase decorated with sunflowers and inscribed with a quotation by Emile Zola, which the Paris dealer Jean-Claude Brugnot got for 258,256 francs, against an initial estimate of 30.000. Having missed that one. Iwakura made do with a 173,781franc vase that is actually more important — the model, called

Rare vase by Damouse and Chaplet, decorated with

"Aux Immortelles," was displayed at the Paris exhibition of 1900. It would be wrong to assume that the Japanese alone displayed interest at the Paris sale. At least one other institution was operating that day, but on a shoesting. The Australian National Gallery of Melbourne, which has immense resources and has been building an ambitious collection of 20th-century painting bought a rare stone-ware vase of Japanese meiping shape decorated with irises and signed jointly by Edonard Dammouse, the designer, and Ernest Chapler. The price was 34,068 francs. It also acquired a pleasant if somewhat banal vase decorated with deffodils from the Gallé factory for 39,164 francs. The reason: limit and could not go higher. The Americans, so active for many years, hardly took part in the game.

The Japanese thus had the field to themselves on any substantial

New York Plans Arts Festival

N EW YORK — More than 25 dance, theater, music and film programs from 16 nations have been engaged for the first New York International Festival of the Arts next June, Martin E. Segal, chairman of the festival, announced. Negotiations are under way for some 60 more.

The theme of the festival, scheduled for June 11 to July 11. 1988, is "The Performing Arts of the 20th

The opening week of the festival, which may become a biennial or annual event, will include the premiere of a new ballet by American Ballet Theater and a gala concert by the New York Philharmonic.

Among the festival highlights, Jason Robards and Colleen Dewhurst are to star on Broadway in rotating productions of Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey into Night" and "Ah, Wilderness!" and Mike Nichols is staging a new production of Samuel Beckett's "Waiting for Godot" at Lincoln Center Theater. The festival's schedule also includes the premieres of ballets by Merce Cunningham and Arthur Mitchell, a new work by the director, choreographer and playwright Martha Clarke, and an international film series at the Museum of Modern Art.

The theater component of the festival is to feature the Gate Theater of Dublin in Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock." Actors from Japan, India and hiro Yamaguchi.

Indonesia are to be featured in a performance of Franz Xaver Kroetz's "Request Konzert," a pantomime, at the Asia Society, and the New York Shakespeare Festival is presenting "Latino on Broadway," a new piece based on the work of Jorge Luis Borges. Contemporary American playwrights will be represented with new plays at off-Broadway theaters, under the stewardship of Curt Dempster, artistic director of the Ensemble Studio Theater. The Italian director Giorgio Strehler is to direct two plays for the festival.

Music includes the New York premiere, in concert form, of "Punch and Judy," an opera by Harrison Birtwistle, and concerts by the Ensemble InterCon-temporain, under Pierre Boulez. The New York City Opera is to open its production of Franz Lehar's "Merry Widow." Several evenings of avant-garde music have been planned, and the festival will coincide with the JVC Jazz Festival.

The Marshall Plan: Would The Effort Be Made Today?

By LEONARD SILK

New York Times Service EW YORK - A few days before President Ronald Reagan took off for Venice this week, he spoke in the East Room of the White House in honor of the memory of George C. Marshall on the 40th anniversary of the Marshall Plan. On June 5, 1947, Marshall, then the secretary of state, gave the commencement address at Harvard University, offering U.S. help for the reconstruction of war-scarred Europe. "Our policy," he said, "is not directed against any country or doctrine but against hunger, poverty, despotism and chaos."

The American commitment to the European Recovery Program was enormous. As Mr. Reagan said at the White House, in today's money — after allowing for inflation — it cost "about $60 billion." But that figure greatly understates what a burden comparable to the Marshall Plan would be for the United States today. The real gross national prod-uct has tripled since then, so an equivalent burden now would be about $180 billion.

Reagan appeared to be making up for McCarthy's assault on the general as a virtual traitor.

Could and would the United States make such an effort today? Fiscally it would be next to impossible — without a drastic change in the use of American resources. The federal budget in fiscal 1986 showed a deficit of $221 billion; optimists expect the deficit this year to be about $180 billion.

And Gramm-Rudman constraints on the budget, aimed at producing a balanced budget by 1991, are severely squeezing foreign aid. The Reagan administration did increase foreign aid to a peak of $20.2 billion in 1985 from $9.6 billion in 1980.

But the Gramm-Rudman budget cuts have since driven foreign aid down to $12.9 billion. While that still represents a 26 percent increase since 1980, John W. Sewell and Christine E. Conzee note in Foreign Affairs magazine that all foreign aid growth since 1980 has been in the area of security and military assistance; economic

As long as the budgetary pie was expanding, they note, it was possible to put together a coalition in Congress to support foreign aid. Now, however, with the drive on to chop the deficit as a major cause of America's international trade and growth problems, the foreign-aid coalition has broken down. Congress cut the administration's aid request last year by 23 percent, and resources for the next few years are not likely to be more plentiful.

T THE VENICE summit conference the administration will A be pressing its allies for greater help on the economic and military fronts. In his own statement on the 40th anniversary of the Marshall Plan, Secretary of State George P. Shnitz urged the allies "to note and act on the reality that the United States can no longer carry the largest share of the burden."

The United States, Mr. Shultz said, has devoted a much larger proportion of its national budget to military spending than its allies have. It could once do this without strain, but the American economy no longer dominates the Western world. "The Marshall Plan helped to create equality between the two halves of the Atlantic alliance," he said, bu, today "we must share responsibilities equally."

In hailing Marshall as "a gallant soldier, a visionary statesman and an American who set a standard of honor and accomplishment for all who have followed," Mr. Reagan appeared to be making up for the assault on the general as a virtual traitor that was made by Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin in the early Although Dwight D. Eisenhower was Marshall's protégé, as Forrest C. Pogue notes in his new book, "George C. Marshall: Statesman," Eisenhower failed, during his 1952 presidential campaign, to defend Marshall against the McCarthy charges of "pro-Communism." President Harry S. Truman was outraged by Eisenhower's deletion of support for Marshall from a speech he gave in Wisconsin. That deletion came at the request of Republican politicians, and Mr. Reagan went all out to erase that blot.

ICI to Buy Stauffer Chemical

Unilever to Get $1.69 Billion

By Watten Getler

International Herald Tribune
LONDON — Imperial Chemical Industries PLC said Friday that it had agreed to buy the Stanffer Chemical Co. subsidiary of Unil-ever PLC, the food and chemical giant, for $1.69 billion.

The move will significantly broaden ICI's market presence in the U.S. agrochemical business. Stanffer is based in Westport, Con-

Under the agreement, ICI, the largest British industrial group, will pay cash for Stauffer and assume $233 million of its debt.

The transaction, one of the largest agreed takeovers between two British companies, is expected to be completed in July.

The acquisition will propel ICI from sixth to third place among world agrochemical giants, following Ciba-Geigy of Switzerland and Bayer AG of West Germany.

The approximent boosted Hamman and Bayer AG of West Germany. The announcement boosted Unilever shares by 100 pence, to £31.83, on the London Stock Exchange. ICI shares, after some jittery trading were little changed.

"ICI is paying a fair but full price," said Jinty Price, chemical industry analyst with brokers Barclays de Zoete Wedd in London, "but they're paying for a unique opportunity. Stauffer is a super fit, adding its strength in herbicides for com and rice to ICI's strength in herbicides for soya and cotton." With the agrochemical business of Stauffer added, ICP's agrochemical revenue this year should approach $1.5 billion. Stauffer's specialty and bulk chemicals divisions probably will be sold, an ICI spokesman said. Unilever had acquired Stauffer in December through its $3.1 bil-lion purchase of Chesebrough-Pond's Inc., the U.S.-based phar-maceuticals group. Unilever said then that it planned to sell Stauffer. Stauffer had 1986 pretax profit of $113 million on sales of $1.3 billion, Unilever said. The net book value of its assets was $500 million.

For the current year, analysts ex-pect Stauffer's agrochemical business to post pretax profit of $45 million on sales of $450 million. . Stauffer, with activities in and outside of the United States, is the largest Chesebrough unit sold by Unilever so far, others sold have reised almost $100 million. Prince, a sports product manu-facturer, and the Bass shoe compa-

my are also to be sold.

The Lawton experience is a common one in U.S. manufacturing. For the first time since World War II, sustained and substantial productivity increases are not being shared with workers in the form of higher wages. Instead, the financial gains are going to corporate profits or to pay for the price cuts and costsaving capital investments needed to compete with lower-cost manufacturers in Japan and other countries.

The hourly compensation of American manufacturing workers, adjusted for inflation, rose an average of only eight-tenths of 1 percent annually from 1981 through 1986, and actually declined in the 12 months ending in

U.S. Jobless Rate Steadies at 6.3% After April Drop

WASHINGTON - The U.S. unemployment rate remained at the decade's low of 6.3 percent in May for the second consecutive month, the government said Fri-

An increase in the number of service jobs, particularly in finance. insurance and real estate, helped offset the large number of people entering the work force, keeping the unemployment figure at its lowest since March 1980, the Labor

The jobless rate fell by a dramatic 0.3 percentage point in April. The number of unemployed people in May was 7.5 million, almost unchanged from April.

At 6.3 percent, the unemploy-ment rate is 0.9 percentage point below its level of a year ago. About 800,000 fewer Americans are job-less than in May 1986. The civilian labor force increased by 658,000 in May after two months of little change. Analysts had expected this.

"Even though employment nor-maily increases strongly between April and May as outdoor activity picks up and young people enter the labor market, the size of the April-to-May change is probably somewhat exaggerated," said the commissioner of labor statistics, Janet L. Norwood.

In contrast, a separate survey of nonagricultural payrolis showed employment growth of only 123,000, the lowest monthly increase of the year.

Economists and business leaders increasingly believe that the sluggishly growing economy may be stated economic activity," said Lawrence Chimerine, chairman of Wharton Econometrics, a forecasting firm based in Philadelphia.

The May payroll gains were es-sentially limited to the service side of the economy. Employment in hospital and business services, such as data processing, accounted for more than one-third of the gains. Employment in the finance, insurance and real estate sectors rose by about 15,000.

Manufacturing employment held steady at 19 million but construction employment "rose a little less than expected for this time of the year and, after seasonal adjust-ment, was down slightly from April," the Labor Department said.

Overtime in manufacturing rose to an average 3.8 hours per week in May, the highest since early 1978.

Including revisions that the department makes annually in the payroll survey estimates, the economy has created 1,091,000 jobs this year. For all of 1986, about 2.5 million jobs were created.

The jobless rate has been falling gradually since November 1982, when it hit 10.8 percent.

Most of the recent declines in unemployment have been among adults, both men and women, while the rate for teen-agers has shown little improvement.

Among adult men, the May jobless rate was 5.5 percent, unchanged from April but down 0.5 percentage point since January. The May rate for adult women was percent, down from 5.5 percent "The unemployment numbers of in April and 5.9 percent in January.

After the lobbying group's annual meeting in Coventry, England, top executives of Europe's auto in-dustry called this week for the EC "to put in place a truly common external trade policy vis-a-vis trad-ing partners who do not practice fair and balanced trade."

In the first quarter, exports to the EC by the members of the Japan Automobile Manufacturers Association soared 30 percent, to 381,000 units from 294,000 in the comparable period in 1986. Moriharu Shizume, director of

NYSE Falls in Sleepy Trading

NEW YORK - Prices on the New York Stock Exchange drifted lower Friday in the slowest trading in more than five months, pulling back after the rally of the two previous

The Dow Jones industrial overage, which gained nearly 59 points Wednesday and Thursday, fell 10,03 points to close at 2,326,15. That left the average with a net gain of 34.58 for the week. Declines led advances by an 8-7 ratio.

Volume was about 129.11 million shares, down from 140.30 million Thursday and the lightest total since 91.88 million on Jan. 2, the vear's first trading session. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was down 1.64 at 293.45.

"The market today was almost moribund." said Gerald Simmons, a managing director in the listed trading department at Smith Barney. Harris Upham & Co. "A few takeover stocks dominated the active lists, and that's indicative of a tired market." Mr. Simmons said.

Analysts said traders were generally pleased with the market's recent progress in the face of the impending change of leadership at the Federal Reserve Board, where Paul A. Volcker is to be replaced in August by Alan Greenspan. But they also noted disappointment over the low levels of trading volume that accompanied the advance, which suggested that many market participants were reluctant to commit them-

Taiwan Bank Chief Urges U.S. To Ease Its Demands on Trade

TAIPEI — The central bank governor said Friday that the government had done much to satisfy U.S. demands for economic liberalizasatisfy U.S. demands for economic liberalization and that Washington should not ask for further steps to reduce Taiwan's trade surplus.
The governor, Chang Chi-cheng, said at a news conference that Taiwan had opened its markets by lowering trade barriers, allowed its currency to appreciate against the U.S. dollar and boosted its imports of U.S. goods.
"We have tried our best to satisfy the United States and its chould not pressure us any more."

States and it should not pressure us any more,"

The cabinet agreed Thursday to cut import tariffs on 331 items by an average of 32 percent.

Tariffs on 2,562 other products were slashed by up to 50 percent earlier this year in an effort directed mainly at reducing Taiwan's trade surplus with the United States.

The bilateral surplus reached $4.98 billion in the first four months of this year, compared with $3.86 billion in the year-earlier period.

Mr. Chang said that the rise of the Taiwan dollar against the U.S. dollar would help reduce the rurglus. Since September 1985, the Taiwan the surplus. Since September 1985, the Taiwan dollar has risen by more than 22 percent against the U.S. currency.

But he added, "Some political opportunists in the United States think the rise is not

South Korean Car Exports Rose 137% in May From Year Earlier

SEOUL — Sparked by strong sales in the United States and Canada, South Korean automobile exports soured to 61,400 in May, up 137 percent from May 1986, officials said Friday. Exports for the first five months of the year totaled 184,800, 63.6 percent above the 1986 period, when 112,900 cars were shipped.

South Korea's top automaker, Hyundai, exported 45,300 automobiles last month, while Daewoo shipped 10,800 and Kia shipped 5,300. The three plan to export 650,000 cars this year.

Growth of French GDP Slowed To 0.1% in Year's First Quarter

PARIS — French gross domestic product grew by 0.1 percent in the first three months of 1987, the National Statistics Institute said Friday. The government has predicted a 2 percent expansion of GDP for the year.

The first-quarter figure followed growth of 0.4 percent in the last quarter of 1986 and 0.1 percent in the first quarter of 1986, the institute said.

U.S., Canada Resolve Dispute on Trade Data

The Associated Press
OTTAWA — Canadian and U.S. officials have reached a compromise on the exact size of Canaplus, Statistics Canada said Thursday. The figure was the sub-ject of a dispute at a time of negotiations on a proposed free-trade pact between the world's largest trading partners.

The two nations have agreed that Canada had a surplus of 18.4 billion Canadian dollars ($13.7 bil-lion) in the trade of goods with the United States. Canada originally estimated its surplus at 15.8 billion dollars while U.S. officials put the figure at 31.8 billion dollars.

Toshiba to Build Computers in U.S.

TOKYO - Toshiba Corp., the Japanese electronics firm, said Friday that it plans to build portable personal computers in the United States and bolster its sales of office automation equipment in Italy. The company said it will start producing "lap-top" compact and lightweight computers at its plant in Louise Collisions in Louise Collis in Irvine, California, in July. Under the plan, 5,000 units of the T-3100/20 model will be built each month. Product lines and volume telephones and medical electronic equipment will be expanded later.

Toshiba also said it had estab-

Allegis Shares Rise Sharply on Pilots' Proposal

NEW YORK - Stock of Allegis Corp. rose sharply Friday after a proposal from the pilots' union of United Airlines asking the management of Allegis Corp., United's parent company, to spin off its car rental and hotel divisions and turn the airline over to United's employees. Under the plan. Allegis shareholders would keep a 20 percent interest in the restructured company.

In trading Friday on the New York Stock Exchange, Allegis stock climbed $2.375 per share to close at $89.875. The union said Thursday that two British financiers, David and Frederick Barclay, were willing to acquire Hilton International Co. for $1 billion. Under its plan, the union said stockholders would receive at least $70 a share, for a total of about $4.1 billion.

Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, who assumed power at Rome in A.D. 161, was the last of the "Five Good Emperors," the successor of Nerva. Trajan, Hadrian and Antoninus Pius. Edward Gibbon, in a famous sentence, described the years of their reigns (A.D. 96 to A.D. 180) as "the period in the history of the world during which the condition of the human race was most happy and prosperous." Though modern historians have found fault with this judgment as too generous, it is still true that never before had this huge area enjoyed uninterrupted peace for so long a time - nor, unhappily, has it managed to do so since. But it fell to the lot of Marcus to preside over the last years of this golden age; his death in 180 ushered in what a contemporary historian called "a kingdom of iron and rust."

WHEN Plato, in "The Republic," foresaw no end of troubles for human communities unless philosophers became kings or kings philosophers, he was thinking of small city-states like his native Athens, or Syracuse, where his attempt to raise a young despot as philosopher ended in dismal failure. He could hardly have imagined that six centuries after his day a man trained as a philosopher and devoted to philosophy would become sole ruler of an empire that stretched from Spain and Scotland in

In this authoritative and fascinating biography of the emperor (an updated version of the 1966 edition) Anthony Birley defines his task as "the simple one of recording Marcus's life as accurately as possible, setting him in his context and allowing him to speak for himself." He draws expertly on a fund of evidence that is richer for the life of Marcus than for that of any other of the "good emperors": the imperial coinage, with its portraits and commemorations of events of the reign; inscriptions from all parts of the empire; legal compilations (which include many imperial pronouncements); the testimony of contemporaries, such as the physician Galen and the orator Aelius Aristides; the late biography included in that strange miscellany of possible fact and blatant fiction known as the "Historia Augusta"; and, most important of all, the words of Marcus himself. We have a considerable number of letters from his Latin correspondence with his tutor

Fronto and also the notes, written in Greek during the last years of his life, which are generally known as "The Meditations" but which first appear in our tradition under the title (whether it was given to them by Marcus himself we do not know) "To Himself."

Solution to Last Week's Puzzle

Unlike his immediate predecessors, Hadrian and Antoninus Pius, Marcus had to deal with major threats to the security and prosperity of the empire. Rome's northern frontier had been quiet for more than half a century but early in Marcus's reign. under increasing pressure from populations on the move from the east and north, the frontier tribes invaded Roman territory. They even succeeded at of his life he had to face this recurring danger; he spent seven years away from Rome campaigning in the Balkans.

Further doubt surrounds the colt's bid because he won the Derby and Preakness while using Lasix, a diuretic prescribed to prevent bleeding that often improves overall performance. Horses are not permitted to run with Lasix at New York tracks.

Still, Alysheba has faced every horse in the race except Gone West and Manassa Jack and beat them all in the Derby, the Preakness or both. His strong finishes suggest he will handle the Belmont route, while many of his rivals may have trouble at the distance.

Gone West was held out of the Derby and the Preakness to prep for the Belmont and could pose the greatest threat to the favorite. "Ishtar," the flop: Beatty and Hoffman down among the vultures.

By Aljean Harmetz New York Times Service T OS ANGELES - In the only way that matters to Holly-wood, "Beverly Hills Cop II" and "Ishtar" are polar opposites.

During its first 12 days at 2,326 theaters in the United States, "Cop," which stars Eddie Murphy, sold $64 million worth of tickets. In its first 17 days at 1,120 theaters, "Ishtar," which stars Dustin Hoffman and Warren Beatty, grossed $11 million; audiences are shrinking daily and the movie is losing theaters each Comparing the year's biggest blockbuster and the year's biggest disappointment — both of which got decidedly mixed reviews throws a spotlight on how and why decisions are made in the movie industry.

According to a number of executives at Hollywood's major stu-dios, the first mistake Columbia made with "Ishtar" was saying yes to a movie that required Holfman and Beatty to play untalented songwriters running around the desert swathed in burnooses. "If you're buying those two actors, you're buying them as movie stars," said one executive. "Audiences don't want to see Warren having trouble getting women and Dustin covered in sand."
